REGIONAL PERCEPTIONS REPORTING

- The Yorke Peninsula is seen as a warm and inviting destination for almost all traveller types, from families seeking entertainment and activities to fill the school holidays, through to couples or groups in explore the natural environment and get a taste of the regions seafood
- A significant challenge for the Yorke Peninsula is a perceived lack of uniqueness relative to other beach destinations, the distance, and that it is seen as a summer destination.

To drive increased visitation and expenditure, we recommend the Yorke Peninsula:

Leverage the perceived quietness to the regions advantage

There is something special for travellers about having a beach or nature experience all to yourself. This quietness could be leveraged to motivate experience all to yourself. This quietness could be leveraged to motivate visitation from those looking to escape the rat race of everyday life, and visit a region that truly helps you escape or recharge. Whether it be catching your first fish, or hiking to find some incredible views, there is something to be discovered in the region, and having it all to yourself makes it even more special.

Motivate winter tourism through events

Being seen as a summer only destination is limiting visitation in the cooler months. Holding targeted events, or introducing promotions to drive visitation in the winter will boost tourism and expenditure in the region. People also struggle to envision what a holiday to the Yorke Peninsula would look like in winter, so using imagery of cosy winter campfires with a glass of red, winter hikes, a successful sunset fishing trip, and other activities may increase appeal.

Itineraries for different traveller types to help communicate the style of holidays people can have

The Yorke Peninsula appeals to almost all traveller types once they know more about the region. The challenge is targeting an experience type to the traveller type. Using itineraries may help visitors imagine the type of trip they could have Combining food and drink experiences with tours to immerse visitors in the local culture and industry, coupled with opportunities to relax and recharge, may motivate increased consideration for the region.
